Dulles, Rhee To Confer on Korea Treaty

Secretary of State on Way to Seoul For 'Exploratory' Talks

MCCHORD AIR FORCE BASE, Wash. (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles today winged across the Pacific toward Seoul and talks with Korean President Syngman Rhee on the wording of a Korean-American security pact.

Dulles, who was the object of an angry blast by Red China's Peiping radio yesterday, left this sprawling base south of Tacoma last night after a flight from Washington.

The treaty Dulles is to discuss with the aging Korean leader is designed to strengthen the war-torn country against the possibility of a future Communist attack.

Also slated for discussion was a rehabilitation plan revealed Saturday in which Dulles and President Eisenhower said American troops would be used to repair war damage in South Korea.

Before leaving Washington yesterday, Dulles told newsmen the United States intends to consult fully with other U. N. members on the future of Korea.

As to his talks with Rhee, Dulles said in a statement:

"It is clearly appropriate that there should be a preliminary exchange of views with the government of the Republic of Korea, which was the victim of the Communist aggression and which contributed mightily to stopping that aggression.

"But the United States will not finally determine its position in relation to the (forthcoming) political conference (on the future of Korea) and its procedure until we have had the benefit of wider consultation."

Dulles said his talks with Rhee were to be purely exploratory and would not be binding on the United States.

He said he intends to seek maximum coordination between South Korea and U. S. policies before the political conference.

Rhee's defiant stand for the ultimate unification of Korea may prove the stumbling block to the conference. The Korean leader has stated that South Korea will walk out of the conference and resume the war if within 90 days the conference has not produced tangible results on Korean unity.

As Dulles flew across the United States, Peiping radio said in a broadcast monitored by The Associated Press at San Francisco that the "series of absurd statements issued by Dulles undoubtedly cast a shadow on the future of peace in Korea."

Allies Geared for Fast Handling of Prisoners

MUNSAN, Korea (AP) — The United Nations Command staged an elaborate trial run today of the machinery which will speed 3,313 Americans and other Allied prisoners of the Korean War homeward in a mass exchange starting Wednesday.

One hundred and fifty Allied soldiers played the role of liberated POWs in the dress rehearsal and actually were moved from the exchange point at Panmunjom to the port of Inchon, where United States-bound troop ships awaited the actual exchange.

Allied and Communist Red Cross representatives, meanwhile, cleared the way for the first joint inspection of North and South Korean prisoner camps.

They signed an agreement—at first opposed by the Reds—during a 20-minute meeting at Panmunjom which a Red Cross spokesman said might make it possible for the 60-man joint teams to get started Tuesday. The agreement allows the teams to visit Red camps as far north as the Manchurian border.

The Chinese Reds' Peiping radio said the first group of Communist-held POWs, including sick and wounded, was due Monday at Kaesong, seven miles north of Panmunjom, and a second group was en route from Pyoktong prison camp on the Manchurian border.

A last-minute dispute with the Reds delayed for a day the departure of joint Red Cross teams to North and South Korean prisoner camps with comfort packages for some 87,000 men in their last hours of captivity.

A Communist proposal to keep the 60-man joint teams out of the prisoner camps themselves was flatly rejected by the U. N. Command.

Feverish preparations for the exchange stirred excitement at Munsan.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, commander of the U. S. 8th Army, watched the practice run at Freedom Village with a critical eye.

"We want to make the returned prisoners as comfortable as possible for as short a time as possible," Taylor said. "I know from past experience you are bound to have bugs in any big-sized operation and I want to get the bugs out of this one just as fast as I can."

The Reds plan to return the prisoners at the rate of 400 a day.

The U. N. Command already has moved the first of its 74,800 North Korean and Chinese captives to holding points near Munsan and Seoul. They will be turned over to the reds at a daily rate of 2,400 able bodied and 360 sick and wounded.

Some 2,400 other Chinese and North Korean captives were being loaded aboard landing craft near their camps at Koje and Cheju islands Monday for shipment to Inchon, where they will be transferred to trains for Panmunjom. Another 600 were due at Inchon Tuesday morning, while a special train was ordered at Pusan for 330 sick and wounded South Koreans due to leave Koje Tuesday afternoon.

The 400 Allied prisoners to be delivered Wednesday and others who will follow will be taken by truck on the 15-mile trip to Munsan.

Americans will get their first real taste of freedom at Freedom Village, South Koreans at Liberty Village and British Commonwealth liberated prisoners at "Camp Brittanica," all near Munsan.

At Freedom Village, the liberated Americans will be served coffee and ice cream, get a DDT dusting, medical checkups, showers, clothing, records processing and mail.

They'll be flown by helicopter to the replacement camp at Inchon, where signs dot the streets with inscriptions such as "It won't be long now . . . Long time, no see . . . Shake, podner . . . Next stop, USA . . . It's a great day . . ."

At Inchon the men will have a few days to get their records checked, see movies, relax and check their back pay—$150 in cash and the rest in a U. S. Treasury check.

Plane Carrying 41 Vanishes in Mediterranean

PARIS (AP)—Planes and ships of four nations searched in vain today for an Air France Constellation plane which apparently crashed in the Mediterranean off the coast of Turkey with 41 persons, including a young American mother and her child.

U.S. Navy helicopters, Greek military planes, and French and Lebanese commercial planes and ships swept repeatedly over the Sea off Kastellorizon, small Greek island between Rhodes and Cyprus.

Most of the 33 passengers presumably were Lebanese and Iranian, but Air France reported Mrs. Marjorie Clark Yahyavi, 27, American wife of an Iranian, was on the plane.

Work on World's Fastest Electric Brain Completed

CHICAGO (AP) — Construction of the world's fastest digital computer-type electronic brain was announced today by Argonne National Laboratory.

The high-speed, general-purpose computer was designed and constructed at Argonne by engineers from Argonne and Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

The device, called Oracle (Oak Ridge automatic computer, logical engine), will be installed at Oak Ridge this fall.

Among its high speed accomplishments, the $350,000 computer can multiply 12-digit numbers such as 999,999,999,999 by 999,999,999,999 some 2,000 times a second.

It can solve, in 20 to 30 minutes, a mathematical problem which would take five to six years for two mathematicians to solve with desk-type electric calculators.

Both Argone and Oak Ridge are U. S. Atomic Energy Commission installations.

Former Maine Governor Dies In Plane Crash

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP)—A private plane fell apart and crashed into a wooded hillside yesterday, killing a former Governor of Maine and two of his friends.

The dead were William Tudor Gardiner, 61, of Bath, Me., and Boston, hero of a famous World War II exploit and Maine's chief executive from 1929 to 1932.

Edward E. Chase, 60, of Cape Elizabeth, Me., a state senator, investment broker and brother of author Mary Ellen Chase.

Edwin S. Burt, 60, of South Portland, Me., a Portland wholesale groceryman.

The three long-time friends were flying home in Gardiner's plane after attending a reunion of the 56th Pioneer Infantry Association at Shamokin, Pa. They served with the group in World War I.

About 13 miles north of this eastern-central Pennsylvania city, the plane, flying at 9,000 feet, fell apart. Rain and heavy clouds were reported in the area.

Gardiner, a colonel in World War I, won the Legion of Merit for exploits in Italy.

He was 51 when he and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, now commanding the 8th Army in Korea, made a daring and hazardous trip into German-held Rome before American forces invaded Italy in 1943.

In full uniform, except for caps, they landed from a British submarine, motored to Rome and spent 20 hours under the Germans' noses in conferences with Marshal Pietro Badoglio. They gained a pledge of loyalty to the Allies and information that vitally affected the course of the war.

Congress Is Set To Close Shop Today

White House Decision On Debt Limit Sets Stage for the Windup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress drove toward mid-afternoon adjournment today after a White House conference decided to postpone action on raising the federal debt limit until next year if possible.

Acting Senate Leader Knowland (R-Calif) said it looked as if the legislators would wind up the present session around 3 p. m. or 4 p.m. ET today.

Knowland and Sen. Millikin (R-Colo), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, told newsmen after a breakfast meeting with President Eisenhower that every effort would be made to avoid a special session this fall to act on the debt ceiling.

Eisenhower had proposed an immediate 15 billion dollar increase. The House voted approval but the Senate Finance Committee killed the measure last Saturday.

Secretary of Treasury Humphrey, who with Budget Director Dodge sat in on the White House meeting, said later the administration will operate under the present 275 billion dollar debt limit for the remainder of the year if it is at all possible.

Knowland and Millikin told newsmen they are hopeful a special session can be avoided.

They also said Eisenhower did not urge the Senate Finance Committee reconsider its action of last week not to take up the debt limitation question at this session of Congress.

Knowland and Millikin did not actually rule out the possibility of a special session, however.

They said no decision on a special session will be made until after September tax collections are totaled.

The breakfast session decision all but nailed down Congress' plans to go home tonight.

The Senate Finance Committee removed the biggest barrier to early adjournment Saturday by rejecting President Eisenhower's request to lift the ceiling o the amount of money the government may legally owe.

The stunning defeat, reportedly on an 11-4 vote, came after easy approval by the House and after administration economic chiefs had argued a fruitless five hours with the 15-member committee.

Called by Eisenhower to breakfast at the White House were the men most concerned with trying to raise the debt limit—Acting Senator Leader Knowland of California, Chairman Millikin (R-Colo) of the Senate Finance Committee, Budget Director Joseph M. Dodge, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey and White House-Congress liaison chief Wilton Persons.

Humphrey, referring to the committee action, said yesterday: "We are giving the subject consideration and we will determine our position in respect to it on Monday."

But the committee's strong stand

2 Mansfielders Shoot Up City On Wild Spree

Drive Around Firing At Random Following Party; 1 Person Hurt

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Two brothers who terrorized Mansfield by driving around shooting at people were remorseful when they sobered up in Mansfield jail, Chief of Detectives F. Bruce Friday said today.

"They don't know themselves why they did it," said Friday, who questioned John Brown, 37, and J. T. Brown, 33. Friday said he'd probably file charges today of "pointing and discharging firearms."

One person was injured in the shooting spree Saturday night. Howard Mason, 29, lost four toes when he was hit in the foot by a shotgun blast. He is recovering in a hospital.

Police got dozens of calls from citizens who said the two men were cruising about firing random shots.

The brothers finally stopped in a downtown parking lot and approached Patrolman Glenn Adams. One of them put the muzzle of an ancient shotgun against Adams' chest and pulled the trigger. The gun did not go off. "The gun was so old I'd be afraid to fire it," Friday said.

Adams called other officers and in the struggle Mason, a bystander, was shot.

Friday said the two brothers, both employed at Wilkins Air Depot at nearby Shelby, went to different parties Saturday evening. Friday said their story wasn't very clear, but apparently one of them got in an argument at his party, picked up the other brother, got their guns, and started out with a crazy notion of revenge.

As they drove past the home of Robert McDaniel, McDaniel yelled at them to slow down. They started shooting at McDaniel, who ducked behind a tree. Then they drove around firing at other people.

"It was just a case of two persons who had been drinking," said Friday. "They haven't been in any trouble before. They said they would give anything to undo what they did."

3 New Districts Set Up

Bucyrus Headquarters Planned by State Patrol

Bucyrus will soon become the district headquarters of the state highway patrol for a 10-county area, including Marion.

The Bucyrus district is one of three new districts to be established in the state patrol system over the week end. The Bucyrus post will be headquarters for patrol activities in Ottttawa, Sandusky, Seneca, Wyandot, Marion, Morrow, Richland, Huron, Erie, and Crawford Counties. It is to be established within the next 30 days.

District headquarters of Marion, Morrow, Wyandot and Crawford Counties have been at Findlay. Patrolmen of the Marion substation have patroled these four counties and will continue to do so until receiving changes in assignment.

It is likely that the new patrol redistricting will result in some changes in the jurisdiction of the Marion post, but no official announcement of these changes has yet been received at the substation.

Commander Appointed

Commanding officer of the new district will be Lieutenant W. B. Spence who is promoted after serving as first sergeant in Columbus. He has been with the patrol since 1935.

The announced intention of the new move is to better the efficiency of the patrol by making the districts smaller and giving patrolmen less area to cover in their rounds of duties.

The other two new districts will be located in Jackson and at a point midway between Sidney and Piqua, near the Shelby-Miami County line.

District headquarters at Bucyrus will be housed temporarily in the old Shonert homestead at 405 N. Sandusky Ave. The home is now owned by Thomas J. Casey, a Bucyrus merchant.

Col. George Mingle, state patrol superintendent, announced that it is planned eventually to locate the permanent headquarters in a state-owned building. This is the arrangement which the patrol has in Findlay and Massillon.

Named First Sergeant

Field Sgt. H. T. Cowell of the Findlay post has been promoted to first sergeant and assigned to the Bucyrus district. Other changes in personnel will be announced later.

Under the new alignment, Hardin County will be in District One with headquarters in Findlay. Union and Delaware counties will be included in District Six with headquarters in Columbus.

The new districts raise the number of state patrol districts to nine.

Creation of the new districts, declared Supt. George Mingle in announcing the reorganization, will provide better police coverage of the state and generally increase efficiency.

The patrol's expansion started in 1951 when the 99th General Assembly increased the patrol's authorized strength from 400 to 650. Present uniformed strength is 565. Mingle said training schools will continue until authorized strength is reached.

While the nine-district plan is effective immediately, there may be as much as a 30-day delay in activating the three new district headquarters, Mingle said.

Red Police Bar Travel to West For Free Food

BERLIN (AP)—East Berlin's Red radio reported fights in scores of Russian zone communities today where police beat back people protesting a Communist ban on traveling to West Berlin for free food.

At Potsdam, said the radio, a group of anti-Communists "tried to incite the population to revolt."

Rail stations in Eastern Germany were reported surrounded by police to enforce the ban. Even columns of bicyclists attempting to ride to Berlin on the highways were turned back.

The northwest German radio broadcasting from the West said workers retaliated with widespread strikes. Many workers at the big Leuna synthetic fuel refinery at Merseburg did not show up for the Sunday night shift, the radio said, and protest strikes crippled the big electro-chemical works at Bitterfield and several large plants at Jena, Magdeburg and Erfurt. At numerous plants day shifts started sit-downs, the radio said.

Though long lines once more queued for hours before West Berlin relief stations for the food parcels, most of those waiting were from East Berlin and border areas around the city.

Since Saturday midnight a tight Red ban on railway and highway traffic had kept other Soviet zone residents from coming to Berlin for food.

And though rail and road traffic between East and West Berlin was still open, Western officials feared the Communist police also might confiscate the parcels of the returning East Berliners. The Reds stripped them from thousands during the weekend.

One estimate said 50,000 parcels were seized in 24 hours.

Unconfirmed reports said workers in some of the Soviet zone's biggest industrial plants planned strikes and demonstrations against the travel ban.

This time, alarmed by the big June 17 revolts, Red police were reinforced everywhere to deal ruthlessly with strikes. Behind them stood Soviet Army tanks if needed.

The ban on travel to Berlin torpedoed yesterday's food distribution, for which 250,000 Easterners had been expected. Only 26,000 persons trickled into th ecity from five Russian-occupied provinces.

Sen. Bricker Gives Eulogy At Services

900 Fill Rotunda For Rites at 11 A.M.; Eisenhowers Attend

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower and other leaders of the nation paid a solemn parting tribute to Sen. Robert A. Taft today at a state funeral in the stone rotunda of the National Capitol.

There were words of consolation from the Scriptures and in prayers of Senate and House chaplains. There was a glowing eulogy from Taft's Ohio colleague, Sen. John W. Bricker: "In him were personified the noblest attributes of the republic — reverence of God and love of liberty."

For these services, the casket and catafalque holding the body of the fallen senator — he died of cancer Friday in New York—were moved to the west side of the rotunda. Yesterday, while thousands of plain people paid their homage, it had rested in the exact center of the vast chamber beneath the massive Capitol dome.

Temporary chairs for 900 were in place for the President and Mrs. Eisenhower, members of the Taft family, Cabinet members, Supreme Court justices, military chiefs, diplomats and the entire membership of Senate and House.

The service began at 11 a. m. with passages from the Bible and a prayer by the Senate chaplain, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris.

"In this solemn hour," he said, "in this domed shrine of each patriot's devotion, the chosen leaders of our mourning nation gather about the mortal body of the fallen leader who, with consecrated powers, scorning personal delights for the sake of statescraft poured forth devotion and unstinted service for the America he loved."

White haired Sen. Bricker spoke in unstinting praise: "Real leader . . . A true liberal . . . Championed unpopular causes and espoused unorthodox views regardless of political consequences . . . Deep convictions . . . Unflinching courage . . . Man of great faith . . . in himself . . . in his fellowman . . in our kind of government . . . in Almighty God."

"During life," Bricker said, "our departed leader created to himself an everlasting memorial. His services to his government and through government to his fellowman will go on and on. Many hereafter because of his ennobling example will gain inspiration to serve in the case to which he gave his full devotion.

"That will be our lasting memorial in his honor."

The Marine band played the national anthem. The House chaplain, Dr. Bernard Braskamp, lifted his hand and gave a benediction: "The Lord bless you and keep you."

That was all. Tomorrow the senator will be buried in Cincinnati. The body and the family were to be flown there this afternoon.

The public was barred from the state funeral. But hundreds gathered on the plaza outside the Capitol building.

Mrs. Taft, ill, in a wheel chair, appeared 10 minutes before the services began.

The President and first lady, both in black, arrived three minutes later, escorted by Senate Secretary Mark Trice and the supervising engineer of the Capitol, Gus Cook.

The Marine band was playing "America the Beautiful."

By that time, all the other prominent guests were in their places.

President and Mrs. Eisenhower occupied front row seats, to the left of the bier and its blanket of yellow roses. Opposite them were Vice President Nixon, the Taft

Urge Go-Slow Policy

Nation's Governors Get Behind Ike on Tax Cuts

SEATTLE (AP)—Four Republican governors, and at least one Democrat, swung behind President Eisenhower today in urging a go-slow policy on tax reduction.

The support formed as Eisenhower planned a flying trip here tonight, following Sen. Robert A. Taft's funeral, to attend his first National Conference of Governors. He is scheduled to return to Washington tomorrow.

The conference chairman, Democratic Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas, in an address prepared for the opening business session, reported "significant progress' in the field of federal-state relations. And he credited it largely to Eisenhower.

Many governors have contended for years that the taxpayers would get more for their tax dollar if the federal government turned back certain tax and welfare functions to the state.

Shivers said President Eisenhower made it clear he wanted the cooperation and assistance of the states' executives; that the close accord between the new administration and the governors' conference led to the launching of a full-scale study of federal-state tax problems.

Outside the four-day conference, there was evidence of widespread support among Republican governors for Eisenhower's attempt to increase the legal limit of the federal debt. Of the 43 governors here, 31 are Republicans.

Gov. Dan Thornton of Colorado, a Republican and an early pre-convention backer of Eisenhower,

Project Requested On Morrow Roads

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD — Condition of Morrow County roads came in for a lot of attention when Morrow County Commissioners met last week at the court house. One delegation was present and one petition was received for road improvements.

A petition was received containing the signatures of 41 persons residing on the Pulaskiville Road. They seek improvement of the road from its junction with Route 95, east to Pulaskiville. Commissioners tabled the petition stating that no additional money was available at the present time for road construction or improvements other than what is already planned for this summer.

A delegation of 16 were present in regards to improvements on the Cardington-Chesterville Road. The delegation requested relief from the dust situation and also for repairing the general condition of the road. Commissioners told the group that no money was available for the oiling of the road but that the road would be improved otherwise.

The County Board of Health submitted a resolution to the commissioners to approve the placing of a .5 mill levy on the ballot this fall for maintaining the county health department. The levy would run for five years. The present .5 mill levy now in effect was for a period of one year only and will run the county health department only through Dec. 31, 1953.

A truck was purchased from Roy H. Donovan of near Fredericktown for $1,050 for use on the county highway system. The truck is a 1949 Chevrolet dump truck.

Hearing on the county budget was held. The commissioners approved the budget and forwarded it to the county budget commission composed of Prosecuting Attorney Gale Weller, county treasurer, W. A. Piper, and county auditor Harold Taylor.

"CINDERELLA" DAYS OVER. Winifred Alice Clark, 7, must live like any other girl and not "have her life turned into a pumpkin every Sunday night," a district court judge ruled at Des Moines, Ia., in a two-year-old divorce case. The girl's weekday life and her week ends with her father, Alvin C. Clark, who treated her to fine clothes and expensive entertainment, were in sharp contrast and it started to effect her personality. Judge ruled that the father could have custody only every other week end and a week during summer. And, he added, the remarried mother shall have "exclusive determination of what the child shall wear at all times." "I don't understand," said Winifred. "I love my mommy. I love my daddy, too."

Repair on Morrow County Roadways Heads First Plans

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD — Morrow County roads will undergo more repair work this summer than had originally been planned. Carl Baughman, maintenance superintendent for the county engineer's office, announced the expanded road program here last week.

Original plans for the county highways this summer included only the sealcoating and stoning of approximately 100 miles of blacktop road in the county. Many additional projects are being carried out, Baughman announced. Work on the seal-coating begins this week, Baughman said. The additional work completed or underway includes the tarring of several gravel roads, a new layer of blacktop on two roads, the construction of a new bridge, and widening of two roads.

Steel has been recently delivered for a new 7 span steel bridge to be located near Bethel. The new bridge will replace a wooden structure.

Gravel roads which have recently been tarred and stoned include: the West Point Road from Route 61 to West Point; the Lexington Road from Steam Corners east to the Richland County line; the Fulton-Chesterville Road from the Penlan pike to 314; part of the Williamsport - Bloominggrove Road; the Richhill - Bloomfield Road from Bloomfield south; and the road from Pagetown to Fargo.

Roads receiving new blacktop includes the road from Route 61 through St. James and Iberia and north and east again to Route 61; and about six miles of the Jackson Road or Copeland Road. In all, a total of about 12 miles of road received new blacktopping.

The Iberia Road from Mt. Gilead to Iberia and the Pompey Road, south of Cardington, will both be widened three feet on each side.

The Army's 42nd Engineer Construction Battalion at Fort Richardson, Alaska, built their own chapel entirely from salvaged materials.

Another boy hit 9-year-old Buster in the head with a rock. It took two operations to repair the damage.

Buster had to have his appendix out. It took the doctor two incisions to find it.

This weekend Buster fell out of a swing. His parents feared an arm was broken. They were wrong.

Both arms were broken.

Honor Among Thieves

DENVER (AP)—Apparently there is honor among some thieves.

Burglars broke into an auto wash garage here yesterday. They did not touch four jars crammed with coins over displays of peanuts and cookies. A sign nearby said: "Honor system."

But they broke open a cigarette vending machine and took an undetermined amount of money.

GREATEST COUNTY AGRICULTURAL AND INDUSTRIAL EXHIBIT IN OHIO THIS YEAR!

Industrial and Private Debt, Like Uncle Sam's, Is Growing

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The battle over raising the federal debt limit dramatizes today the growth of all forms of debt in recent years.

Never have so many Americans owed so much.

Private debt has doubled in the last six years. The federal debt today is 9½ billion dollars higher than a year ago. All are agreed it will climb higher before the year is over, no matter what the Congress decides about lifting the legal limit on it at this time.

State and municipal governments last year issued a record four billion dollars worth of new securities. In the first half of this year they were going into debt at any even faster clip. In the last seven years state and local government indebtedness has doubled. The total now tops 27 billion dollars.

Corporations owed about 85 billion dollars when World War II ended. Fast plant expansion and money inflation has boosted that debt to around 200 billion dollars.

The debts owed by individuals and unincorporated businesses are now estimated to total around 150 billion dollars.

Consumer credit (one easily visible form of individual debt) has swelled to just under 27 billion dollars, with buying on the cuff — installment credit — accounting for more than 20 billion dollars of it.

Mortgage lenders estimate about 10 million single family homes carry mortgages, sustained by the earning capacity of individuals.

This huge debt total of government, business and individuals is being carried neatly at the moment by the wave of prosperity, still unbroken.

It is into this picture of total debt that the controversy over lifting the federal debt limit is thrust. By a 1946 law the U.S. Treasury can't go into debt for more than 275 billion dollars. Its current indebtedness is more than 272½ billion dollars.

This is climbing — in this month, the first of its new fiscal year, Treasury collections fell about two billion dollars below its receipts. It has a cash balance of a little less than nine billion dollars.

Some argue the Treasury could stay within the debt limit the rest of this year if it would borrow the 2½ billion more that the law allows and let its cash drop to three billion dollars.

Treasury Secretary Humprey, however, says it isn't safe for the Treasury to have less than six billion dollars in its jeans at any one time. Too many unexpected things could happen.

Trend of Two Decades Reversed

Rural Churches in America Make Big Comeback

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP)—Country churches—what's left of them—today are making a lively comeback.

"They were dying off pretty fast for a while," said Dr. Thomas Alfred Tripp, head of the Congregational Christian Churches Department of Town and Country. "But they're picking up strength now."

For two decades, up to World War II, rural churches in America were closing at the rate of about 1,000 a year. Hundreds continued to fall by the wayside up to 1950. Many still are in shaky condition.

"But I don't think many more will be lost," said Don F. Pielstick, head of the Town-Country Department of the National Council of Churches. "What we lose one place, we now are gaining somewhere else.

"I see quite an encouraging day ahead, with new programs and a new type rural minister. Rural America is going to be better served by its churches during the next 10 years than ever before."

A big factor in curbing the casualty toll has been the development by nearly all major denominations of intensive, national programs to pump new life into the faltering rural churches.

"We've become more conscious of the importance of rural people," said Msgr. Luigi G. Ligutti of Des Moines, head of the National Catholic Rural Life Conference.

"As a result, our rural churches are much better off than they were five years ago. There has been a tremendous improvement in the outlook."

All kinds of techniques, plans and strategies have been put into action for waking up the sleepy little church at the crossroads.

Social researchers have canvassed the countryside. Seminaries are channeling students into the rural ministry, not just as a training ground, but to make a profession of it.

Financial aid has flowed out from city headquarters. Rural church federations have popped up all over. Conferences and seminars to guide country preachers have become about as numerous as weeks in the year.

A series of stunning blows combined to kill off more than 20,000 rural churches since the 1920.s

Mechanized farming shrank rural population. So did the depression and "Dust Bowl" migrations. Cars and good roads made the nearby church less essential. Defense industries also sapped farm life. Population movement to the cities still is going on.

Other influences, authorities said, also hurt the rural church. Poor preaching. Lack of money. Too little planning or leadership, and a resulting indifference and weak church morale.

Many little churches were left vacant to rot—lonely, steepled derelicts along the section lines. Some were converted to homes, granaries or livestock barns.

To save and invigorate the estimated 70,000 rural churches which have weathered the storms, denominations have gone to work.

Take, for example, the Methodist Church. Its National Missions Division gives financial aid to 1,700 rural pastorates, and loans to many others. It keeps scores of trained personnel in the field working on rural church projects.

In many areas, it has organized the "group ministry" or "larger parish plan"—as in Pemiscot County, Mo., where four ministers, each a specialist, serve 11 churches giving them all a team program for youth, recreation and worship.

Methodist "mobile units" are constantly on the go, bolstering one weak church community after another. Seminaries send students to rural churches on weekends. Four conference offices have full-time agricultural-religious experts, who supply services somewhat like "county agents."

Other denominations do similar jobs. American Baptists have a rural church center at Greenlake, Wis., which runs free schools for rural pastors. The Episcopalians have a similar center at Roan Ridge near Parkville, Mo.

Catholics recently have begun holding numerous farm retreats, and more rural religious vacation schools. In 1950, the Vatican, at the request of American bishops, made March 22 a feast day honoring St. Isadore, patron saint of farming. A shrine to St. Isadore was set up at Des Moines.

Dr. Tripp listed these key means for giving a poor rural church stability:

A good building; systematic financing; a list of prospective members in the community; an all-around program for all age groups; lay officials to run the church, rather than the minister alone; a sound parish organization often in conjunction with other churches; good community relations, and a theologically well-grounded pastor.

Pielstick said the biggest trouble now is among rural churches in the Southeastern United States, where changes in the farm scene were more recent because of the slower-mechanization of cotton farming, among other things.

"This is till the great testing period for rural churches in the Southeast," he said.

ACROSS THE COUNTER

A friend in the insurance business in another state reports an experience which illustrates an important fact you should consider. Naturally, this experience is similar to many which have taken place right here in Marion. But for obvious reasons we cannot always publicize local happenings.

Earl J. Andrews

A visitor leaned over the railing at the top of a stairway to speak to someone on the ground floor. The railing broke and the visitor fell. He injured his arm and back requiring hospitalization and expensive medical care. Before long he entered suit for $20,000 against the owner. Fortunately, the owner had an adequate liability policy. The claim was settled effectively out of court by the insurance company.

The point to remember: The proper liability policy is needed even for a home. And, naturally, the need is all the more urgent if you are engaged in a business, including farming, or a profession, or own a rental property.

Radio and Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Forty-Two

"Love Is Better On Our Colossal Miracle Screen", it says right here in an ad for a movie. Now, there's an interesting, if slightly frightening, possibility. I expect it's true, too Love on a collossal miracle screen IS undoubtedly better as well as bigger and tastier and probably milder.

J. CROSBY

A movie critic I know, who had just been to see "How To Marry A Millionaire," was telling me about that vast experience with some relish. "In this one scene, Marilyn Monroe was stretched out on a sofa. She was 42 feet long and I loved every foot of her."

Well, I haven't seen the picture and I don't intend to. A five-foot seven-inch Marilyn Monroe is unsettling enough. Forty-two feet, I couldn't s'and. Maybe not even 22 feet. And what happens when you go home and are confronted by your five-foot four-inch wife? How is a man expected to readjust his scale of values so rapidly? Naturally, a five-foot four - inch wife can't be expected to love him nearly so tumultously as a 42 foot Marilyn Monroe, and is life worth living without it?

LOVE IS undoubtedly better on colossal miracle screens, but can the average man stand all that outsize emotion? As a matter of fact the whole problem of scale bothers me. It took me five years to get used to an eight-inch Ed Sullivan. I recall, when television first loomed as a major industry, a lot of picture folk comforted themselves with the thought that no one was going to get especially excited over even the sultriest female if she were only eight inches high. And come to think of it, no one has.

We've had comedians on television; we've had Imogene Cocas; we've had John Dalys. We haven't had any Marilyn Monroes, if you know what I mean and I think that you do. So perhaps there is something to this theory that passions can be exactly measured by the footage they're spread out over. If you're in love you had better be nine feet tall, or the girl will think you're just kidding.

The acreage is what matters. Twentieth Century Fox has a movie coming up called "The Robe" which is going to be the greatest thing ever, largely because the screen is roughly the size of Rhode Island. A man could take his family for a picnic on Mt. Sinai on this screen and never encounter a single actor.

BUT THIS passion for bigness has left some of the folks behind, notably me. I have seen "The Bandwagon" twice. This is a rather odd thing because there aren't many movies I see even once, much less twice. This was more or less an experiment in bigness. The first time I saw the picture in a screening room at Loew's State. There were about 80 people in the audience and it was a hep crowd. I can't recall having had a better time at a picture in years.

"The Bandwagon" has about everything you ought to require in a picture. It has some of the best tunes Arthur Schwartz and Howard Dietz have written over a couple of decades. It as some of the best dancing you can find around. It has a very fine and very funny script by Adolph Green and Betty Comden. It has —if you go for this sort of thing— a delectable form in Cyd Charisse. The Technicolor alone — the brilliant interplay of the costumes against the scenery — was worth the price of admission.

THAT WAS the first time. The second time I saw "The Bandwagon" at the Radio City Music Hall. The screen was the size of Ebbets Field. There were 5,000 people there, muttering, falling asleep in the comfortable chairs, laughing now and then, a little late, at the jokes. They seemed to be enjoying themselves, this mob, but everyone seemed to be enjoying himself separately, like a crowd at a ballroom.

The intimacy of the theater was gone. Much of the fine detail in the script or in the dancing or in the settings was missed entirely. Everything — the screen and the crowd — had just got too large. And it wasn't even colossal miracle screen. It was just the same old Music Hall screen, the size of Ebbets Field.

Perhaps I've just been ruined by television, but it'll be a long time before anyone lures me into the Music Hall again. I'm going back to that eight-inch Ed Sullivan.

The Best Politics

Some of Sen. Taft's friends and most of his opponents used to wonder why he worked so hard at his job.

His friends said he could be a standout figure in Congress without punishing himself with endless attention to detail.

His opponents, on the other hand, charged he was taking an unfair advantage of them by setting too brisk a pace.

It was this tirelessness in performance of duty that earned for Sen. Taft his reputation for being the best-informed man in Congress. It was against this background of information that he reached the innumerable small and great decisions which made him the most respected member of Congress. He brought great credit to the state of Ohio and much-needed prestige to Congress by the scope of his knowledge and the soundness of his judgment.

As his career developed, he came to believe the best politics was conscientious performance of duty. His concept of duty included the tiring routine of visiting every place in the state where people might want to ask him questions and learn more about his views.

In doing this, he became expert in a kind of politics so far superior to the kind favored by most politicians that they scoffed at it. They couldn't understand it. But it worked.

It not only brought re-election to a man who deserved it but it made him the outstanding member of his party—"Mr. Republican."

At his death, Sen. Taft had grown to be more than "Mr. Republican." He was "Mr. Congress"—the prototype of the kind of legislator who can make representative democracy work the way it must work if the United States is going to fulfill its destiny.

End of Federal Rent Control

Depending on whether you favor creeping socialism or creeping capitalism, the long-delayed end of federal rent control will make you sad or happy.

Except for a few dozen areas where extraordinary federal projects are causing acute housing shortages, Washington finally is taking itself out of the relationship between owners and renters.

Local rent laws now are found in only four eastern states—New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Connecticut. There has been no appetite for political interference in the landlord-tenant relationship outside of Washington.

Only two excuses for rent control ever existed or can exist in a non-socialist country—government interference with the housing supply, in the form of restrictions on building materials and labor, and some unusual government project which swamps the available supply of rental housing.

When these excuses cease to be valid, rent control should cease. But the trick then is to stiffen the backbones of politicians scared rabbity of threats of reprisals from tenants who like to have part of their living expenses paid by owners of rental housing.

In France, this legalized form of economic thievery has gone on continuously since the end of World War I. In the United States, rent control began in 1942 and lasted until the middle of 1953 in one form or another. As it finally ends, the creeping socialists are inconsolable in their grief over what they recognize as a mortal blow to one of their brightest hopes.

They Work for a Living

No phrase is used more and understood less than "American working men." In the first place, it includes American working women, who now account for almost a third of the working population of approximately 66 million persons.

Americans 19 years old and over—the lower limit of the working population—as enumerated by the census bureau—are more likely to work in manufacturing than in any other category. About one fourth of all workers help to manufacture something.

Contrary to an impression which has been false for many years, agriculture does not even compare with manufacturing as a source of employment; only 9 per cent of the working population is in agriculture.

That is less than the total in local, state and federal government, outside the armed forces. This is 10 per cent, with another 5 per cent in the armed forces.

Fifteen per cent of the workers are in wholesale and retail trade. Six per cent will be found in utilities, 4 per cent in construction, 3 per cent in finance, insurance and real estate, 6 per cent in transportation and utilities and 19 per cent in miscellaeous employment other than mining, which accounts for 1 per cent.

The "American working man" is a bundle of statistics with no resemblance to the customary impression of a brawny he-man with a dinner pail. In three cases out of ten, "he" is a

No Substitute for Taft

By George Sokolsky

GOP Loses Its Accepted Leader

Few men, in our times, have evoked such loyalty who had nothing to offer but their minds.

SOKOLSKY

Bob Taft never asked anyone to favor him or to support him. In fact, at times, he even riled his personal friends and political supporters by his rejection of guile and trickery as a foul means to a good end.

Only once did I see him hurt by other men's operations and that was in the 1952 convention over the slogan, "Thou Shalt Not Steal," an unfair attack on the efforts of his partisans to hold the Texas delegation.

Some months later, when I discussed the matter with him, his answer was the mild "damn fools!"

During the convention, I spoke to him about what his chances were and he said thta it seemed to him that the Eisenhower people had more votes and that the task was to keep the Republican party together.

UNUSUAL in these days, Taft has rigidly believed in political parties as essential to the continuance of our institutions.

After President Eisenhower was ensconced in the White House, six or seven of Bob Taft's personal friends met with him at dinner in a private home in New York to review the prospects of the Republican party. Taft took the position that it was his bounden duty to help Eisenhower if he could.

His problem at that moment was to get to the mind of the President without the constant interference of the Palace Guard, for whom he had little respect either as men or as Republicans.

He liked Ike but feared that he would suffer from a lack of familiarity with the processes of government in this country.

-:-

HE SPOKE as though they had never been opponents. Among his intimates, he said not one word of defeat, of disappointment, of how much better he might have done this or that.

Defeat was part of the game of life; the business of life had to go on.

I took him to his train after this dinner and we talked further about Ike. He reminded me that during the campaign, he had asked his friends and followers to support Eisenhower wholeheartedly.

He reminded me that in the course of campaigning, he and I spoke together in Philadelphia for Eisenhower and that I had said that he was killing himself in this campaign. His reply to me that night in Philadelphia was that the Republican party was so split that every human effort must be made not only to elect Eisenhower but to hold the party together.

IN THE TAXI in New York, he recalled that conversation and said that the essential task is unchanged and that Eisenhower and the party still needed help.

To many who did not know him, Taft seemed to be a mulish reactionary. Yet when one looks at his legislative record, his was one of the most progressive voices in the United States Senate.

He introduced and carried through to legislation social measures of the widest benefits.

Taft was a practical person who recognized that the responsibility of the legislator was to relate social advances to the national economy, to avoid the pitfalls of unconstitutionality, and to maintain a balanced system of life in the United States, so that initiative and incentive and impetus to ingenuity would not be destroyed.

HE ALSO recognized that in a free society, government is neither by edict nor by mob pressures, but is a compromise among contending and differing groups and between the two parties.

During the past few years, Taft's personal burdens have been heavy, indeed.

His wife, Martha, long his political companion, wise in her own right, became irreparably ill. Attached to her by more than connubial ties, he found her absence from his world of action almost intolerable.

He cared for her with gentleness in spite of the many public demands.

It cannot be said that he took her illness in his stride; it can be said that his personality has been torn between his sense of obligation to his wife and partner and his consciousness that his party had its last chance for survival in 1952.

The Republican party has no substitute for Robert A. Taft. He has been its leader by general acceptance in all the ways that matter in American life. There is no one to replace him.

Claims To Have

By TRUMAN TWILL

The least of us has some claim to fame. I can do these things without half trying:

Remember the page number of the book I am reading in bed when it is time to go to sleep until the next night, without using a book marker;

Use both hands with equal dexterity in eating at the table, throwing a ball, pitching horseshoes and using hand tools;

Fall asleep midway between sitting down on the edge of the bed to get ready to lie down and hitting the pillow with my head;

Estimate time within five minutes under all ordinary circumstances without having seen a clock or a watch for as long as three hours;

Grab hold of my toe-tips with my hands while in a crouching position and jump several inches off the floor — and don't try this if you have sacro-iliac trouble;

Tie a bow tie without looking into a mirror, because it is no harder than tying shoe laces without looking — and anyone should be able to do that;

Read a newspaper story from beginning to end while looking for typographical errors and find them without knowing what the story said;

Let a telephone ring itself out without getting into a stew of curiosity over who is trying to call me;

Make a set of ordinary auto tires run as long as 40,000 miles, barring accidents with broken bottles and other sharp objects;

Keep a typewriter clacking for lines at a time without looking at the keyboard though I never took a lesson;

Put on and take off an undershirt without mussing my hair, which is a much easier accomplishment than it used to be;

Loop on fishworms so they can't wriggle off the hook;

Write a page of script in a handwriting so stylized no one knows what it says;

See the same dress half a dozen times on my favorite female and think each time that it's brand new;

Start a charcoal fire without any kindling, kerosene or other assistance, except a match and a few sheets of newspaper;

Become so amused about a book that the thing becomes unbearable and must be let along until some later time;

Eat one handful of peanuts and shove the peanut dish away for good;

Go for months at a time without smoking a cigaret;

Work within listening distance of a radio broadcast of a baseball game and not listen to a word of the broadcast.

I do not claim these things are unusual. I do not claim they are difficult. Certainly they are not getting me anywhere.

I know a fellow who can hold a broomstick with two hands and jump through the opening made by his arms and the broomstick. There is a fellow with a real claim to fame. He should go far.

Progress Steady in Fight on Cancer

By Edward Nellor

The fourteenth semi-annual report of the Atomic Energy Commission, listed steady but unsensational progress in the fight against cancer.

In reporting on conclusions resulting from the past six months of atomic experiments on cancerous tissue and patients, the AEC advances the cautious prospect that a cure may eventually be found "in the exploitation for research of radioisotopes of the elements which normally make up living matter."

Atomic treatment is now "limited by the degree of damage which may be produced in intervening and near-by normal tissues," the AEC biology and medicine researchers have discovered.

No such limitations are noted in the field of pure research, which is being conducted not only by the AEC but in hospitals and laboratories across the nation.

"It is too soon as yet to offer conclusions concerning the ultimate role of atomic energy in the problem of the control and cure of cancer," the report states.

"It would appear that considerable research is indicated in advancing methods to concentrate the ionizing radiations in cancerous tissues," AEC commissioners noted in the report submitted to the President.

The following experiments and the progress therein in the fight against cancer are contained in the report:

Studies at the University of Southern California indicate that fat in the diet is essential for normal resistance to radiation, which is an important finding since AEC employes must consider cancer a job hazard.

"We are reminded that in juxtaposition to the very radiation which can contribute to cancerous reactions in living tissues, radioisotopes and controlled radiation with neutrons hold promise of being among the most effective means yet devised for the study and treatment of cancer."

The findings regarding resistance of fats in the human body to cancer-producing radiation do not include that hefty individuals are less likely to be victims of the disease — although the experimentation on animals so far indicates that extra fatty oils in the diet build up resistance.

The newest and largest cancer facility is the Argonne Cancer Research Hospital in Chicago, with beds for only 56 patients, but with the most potent new weapons for fighting the disorder. Thirty-two universities and research institutions in the Midwest use the facilities.

At Brookhaven National Laboratory in New York the atomic pile is used in further developing the technique of irradiating deep-seated brain tumors without damaging neary-by tissues.

The department of neurosurgery at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston has made considerable progress in the development of instruments and techniques in the external localization of brain tumors, which still must be removed by surgery, the AEC study reveals.

At the radiation laboratory of the University of California research experiments conducted with animals to ascertain the effects of irradiation on the eye is making progress. The treatment, when refined, and if successful, may lead to treatment for ocular cysts.

At Davis, California, the AEC is supervising the construction of facilities to house 300 dogs in studies to determine the extent of reaction to various doses of radiation.

At Washington University in St. Louis, a new line of research is under way. The studies concentrate on the affect of radiation on nucleic acid in living cells, and the linkage to other cellular components in an effort to determine the basic reaction on all living matter.

The use of radioactive gold and chromic phosphate to insure complete eradication of diseased brain tissue following surgery is being undertaken as an AEC project. Other scientists are using radioactive gold with some success in treatment of prostatic cancer.

Outside the field of medicine AEC experimentation continues in the radiation of fruit trees, shrubs and agricultural plants.

"It is hoped that such large-scale irradiation of many different kinds of trees and plants will develop new and commercially valuable varieties," the AEC report stated.

The AEC has four major research centers for cancer work. Since 1948 a total of $25,000,000 has been spent on construction.

The building program is now complete and all funds and effort will be concentrated on pure research in search of a cure for the dread affliction.

U.S. Families Larger

Larger families are coming back in America.

According to government figures released this summer, a dramatic increase now is taking place in the number of second, third and fourth children being born in this country, an increase which has given the nation more than 4,000,000 younger brothers and sisters since 1950.

Because it is only seven years since the peak of the postwar marriage boom, it is too early to know whether this new trend will continue and whether America is heading back to the really large families which were so commonplace in the 19th century.

Some observers believe it will not; they say that although the future may see many more families of three and four children it is not likely there will be an increase in families of eight or ten or twelve children. Certainly this view has been borne out since 1940.

There are twice as many second, third and fourth children being born today than 13 years ago, but practically no change in the number of children born in very large families.

One of the fundamental truths about American population for more than a century, the Institute of Life Insurance observes, has been a decline in the size of the family; in the 1930's, marriage and birth rates reached their lowest levels.

It was at this point that many population experts began to make bleak predictions about America's future population.

It was at the end of this period, too, that a large number of persons interviewed by a research organization said they believed two children to be an "ideal" family.

Some time after this survey was made, people began to change their minds; when an exactly similar survey was made in 1945 the number came out three children.

It was a year later that the marriage rate and birth rate began to climb. Since then the marriage rate has gone down, has climbed up again (in 1950), and has also declined again.

The birth rate, however, has remained high. There were more babies born in 1951 than in 1950 and more in 1952 than in 1951. So far in 1953 there have been more babies born than during a similar period in 1952.

If the long - term trend toward smaller families has finally reversed itself, America will be a quite different country 10 or 15 years from now than it is today.

There will have to be more schools, more food on grocery shelves, more clothing and more of everything else that goes into family living and child rearing.

There will also have to be a great deal of work done in expanding the millions of expansion attics in houses built and sold since 1947.

Among those most interested in the trend toward larger families are life - insurance companies. The families most apt to own life insurance are those with children and partly for this reason life-insurance ownership has been increasing rapidly since 1945.

Investments of life - insurance companies and other savings institutions have also changed; to cite one example, a much larger proportion of life - insurance funds are now invested in home mortgages.

No matter what happens to the nation's birth rate in the next few years it will not be possible for America to return to the exact population patterns which existed in the 19th century.

In 1850 half the people living in this country were less than 19 years old, not only because so many children were being born but also because of immigration and because of much higher death rates at all ages.

Today, more parents live to rear their own children and even to be grandparents.

Traffic Jam

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP)—Don Alejandro Villasenor, Mexican consul here, has asked the assistance of traffic engineers of the Mexican and U. S. governments to work out some way of alleviating the traffic congestion in Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, just across the international border from this city. All traffic now goes down the narrow main street of the Mexic city, Calle Obregon. Increase in both truck and passenger car traffic has brought about a critical situation, the consul declared. He wants truck traffic rerouted around both cities.

What'll You Have Chief?

The House has approved a bill killing the ancient law forbidding anybody to sell liquor to Indians . . . You've got to be an Indian these days to drink the stuff you get in some places.

Let's be frnk, it is no longer possible at drinking parties to be sure who is an Indian and who isn't . . . It is particularly difficult at cocktail parties, both in the office and in the home.

In the "four parts gin, one part vermouth" martini set everybody puts on the war paint and feathers and goes into a war dance after the third drink . . . Tomahawks are flashed and scalpings ensue.

On the fourth cocktail there are demands for Indian ponies and a marked interest in buffalo hunts.

The last cocktail party we attended would have frightened the toughest of the Comanches, sent the bravest Sioux out on the run and made the last of the Monhicans think he was in a photo finish for place honors.

The law forbidding liquor to the Redman was passed away back in the early days, because it was thought the firewater of those times went to their heads and made them irresponsible. That was before civilized people got to be pretty irresponsible, too, anyway you looked at 'em.

The Indian has been without liquor for generations, unless he got it furtively, and, as he watches the behavior of civilized drinkers, he may feel that the change in the law is nothing to be taken advantage of . . . It could come to pass that nothing that white man has done to him can mean more trouble than free use of the cocktail shaker.

If we were Indians (and there are times when we think we are) and were invited to a modern cocktail party, we would insist that we be allowed to bring our cowpony, use a bow and arrow in case of any marked disturbance and have a couple of squaws outside with Indian medicines and restoratives just in case.

Isabel Bigley of "Me and Juliet" was married to Larry Barnett, Music Corporation of America executive, in Norwalk, Conn. A careful check by this department shows no trouble between the Capulets and Montagues of the Norwalk, Stamford and Greenwich area to date . . . And he Capulets of Bridgeport and Fairfield remain peaceful. . . . We can't help wondering if Mr. Barnett, a music man of note, put it, "But, soft! What light through yonder window breaks? It is the east, and Juliet's the recording!" . . .

Didja hear of the fellow in the New York subway who got up to give another holdup victim his seat? Then there's the one about the passenger who offered his seat to a lady without getting up at all and explained, "It's only a token offering, lady."

An Arizona town has been raided and almost everybody in it arrested for marrying too many women. The lesson is clear: If they want to keep out of jail they must do their marrying via Las Vegas and Reno like most Americans.

Police Commissioner Monaghan of New York has fired a cop identified as placed in the department as a Commie agent . . . A declaration of war by Russia on Mr. Monaghan is expected any minute . . . The only question is what nations will stand by the police commissioner if its bets into the United Nations.

Congress is changing the law under which movie stars, among the best paid people in the country, can escape income taxes by making a picture abroad. They had a perfect right to take full advantage of the law, and can't be blamed for paying only what is demanded, but it seemed pretty funny to see a movie actor performing as the great American, the flawless male and the superdooper hero in a movie made in Europe so he could dodge a tax which everybody in the audience had to pay because they couldn't afford trips abroad. It hasn't been easy to take some of our wealthiest movie actresses, portraying the noblest and most sacrificing types of American woman while getting out of a fair share of the tax bill.

News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO — It was Tuesday, Aug. 3, 1943.

Two months and one day after her husband, Terley L. Vance, 38-year-old principal of the Glenwood elementary school, died of burns suffered in an early morning explosion on June 2, at the Vance home at 515 N. State St., his wife, Gladys Davis Vance, 39, was arraigned before Judge W. Dexter Hazen in Municipal Court on a charge of first degree murder. Her attorneys entered a plea of not guilty for her.

Two Army Air Forces officers who were to the AAF Specialized Storage Depot at the Scioto Ordnance Plant site had arrived and were already busy setting up the starting force of several hundred persons needed to get the new depot into smooth operation.

Classes for training in machine shop work opened at the Harding High School shop. The shop was being opened at the request of the U. S. Rubber Co. in cooperation with the U. S. Employment Service in an effort to obtain skilled labor for the company at the Scioto Ordnance plant.

TWENTY YEARS AGO—It was Thursday, Aug. 3, 1933.

Safety Director Emery Murphy announced closing of Marion's relief commissary through which hundreds of tons of food had been distributed since its establishment 11 months previously. The action was in compliance with a plan of the federal government in cooperation with state relief officials.

It was announced by Post master French Crow that 387 Marion employers had filed certificates stating that they had complied with the President's national recovery act agreement.

D. J. Finley, a member of the utility committee of the Oakland Boosters Club, told the club membership his committee in the next few days would take steps to interest the federal government in financing construction of a municipally-owned water plant for Marion.

Marion on Antique Auto Tour Route

Cars of Pre-1918 Vintage Will Pass Through City Sept. 15

About 300 cars of pre-1918 vintage will pass through Marion on Sept. 16 on their way to Toledo from Columbus. The cars will be participating in the 1953 Glidden Tour which will travel through Ohio in celebration of the Sesquicentennial anniversary of the state.

The Glidden Tour is an annual revival of automobile runs, conducted originally around the turn of the century by the American Automobile Association. The purpose of the tour in those days was to demonstrate the reliability of the "horseless carriage" as a passenger carrier.

The tour will assemble in Cleveland on Sept. 13, leave for Columbus on the 14th, and go through Marion to Toledo and Dearborn, Mich. on the 15th. The cars will cover a 300-mile distance and will consist of automobiles entered by members of the Antique Automobile Club of America, the Veteran Motor Car Club of America, and the Horseless Carriage Club.

The tour will go through Marion on Route 23. Expected to be included in the tour are one, two, or three cylinder cars as well as electrics and steam cars hauled by trailers over the road. These cars, in order to qualify for entry, must be able to operate under their own power in the various parades and exhibits being planned in some of the cities along the route of the trip.

The tour will travel from Cleveland to Barberton on Route 21; Barberton to Wooster on Route 5; Wooster to Columbus on Route 3; Columbus to Toledo on Route 23; and Toledo to Dearborn, Mich, on Route 24.

The cars will leave on Sept. 15 after a parade and visit to the Thompson Products museum in Cleveland the previous day. They will travel to Columbus the first day. The following day, they will proceed to Toledo and Dearborn, where the drivers will be the guests of the Ford Motor Co., General Motors, and the Chrysler Corp.

On Sept. 19, prizes will be awarded and the tour officially closed.

James Melton, well known singer and a past president of the Antique Automobile Club of America, is chairman of the 1953 Glidden Tour Committee. Jerry Duryea of Longmeadow, Mass., son of the pioneer automobile manufacturer, is vice chairman of the committee.

ROUTE OF THE 1953 GLIDDEN TOUR which will travel Ohio's roads in a salute to the State's Sesquicentennial anniversary. The 300 old cars in the tour will leave Cleveland Sept. 14 and end the trip on Sept. 16. They will pass through Marion on their way to Toledo.

Duncan Hines Tells What Makes Really Good Bread

Duncan Hines

Food authority Duncan Hines, author of "Adventures in Good Eating," has revealed what he believes makes really good bread.

He says it's a combination of "a tried and tested recipe, quality ingredients, natural rising, slow baking, care, skill and patience all along the line."

The ingredients he calls for in his own bread—Duncan Hines Home Style Enriched Bread — include unbleached flour, creamery butter, honey and milk products.

"All these go into Duncan Hines Bread which is why I like it, and why I think you will, too," he adds. Duncan Hines Bread is baked locally, delivered fresh daily.

Iberia Couple Wed In Ceremony at Federated Church

Beauty baskets of white gladioli and pompons with greenery and seven-branch candelabra decorated the altar and chancel of the Iberia Federated Church for the July 11 wedding of Ruth Louise Shindeldecker and Allen Riddle. The bride was given in marriage by her father during the double ring ceremony performed by Dr. Frank Boyd at 7:15 p.m.

The musical prelude was provided by Mrs. Herman Derfler at the piano and Ronald Somerville, tenor soloist.

Chantilly lace with nylon tulle over bridal satin were combined in the bridal dress of ballerina length. The high round neck in the fitted bodice was outlined with scalloped edge of lace. Tiny satin buttons closed the long, pointed sleeves and the bodice to which was attached the bouffant skirt trimmed with motifs of lace applique. Pearls trimmed the tiara which held her shoulder length veil of imported illusion and she carried a cascade bouquet of white pompons with a white orchid center.

Mrs. Ila Mae Wells of Ashland, cousin of the bride, as matron of honor, wore yellow and the bridesmaid, Mrs. Marlene Rose of Galion, was in aqua. Their dresses were ballerina length embroidered lace and net over matching taffeta. They wore hats of double pleated net and flowers. Mrs. Wells carried a cascade bouquet of dark purple asters and Mrs. Rose carried a bouquet of yellow daisies and pompons.

Rex Riddle, the bridegroom's brother, served as best man and ushers were Wilbur Jackson of Iberia and William Rose of Galion.

A reception for 80 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents which was decorated with baskets of white gladioli and pompons.

For traveling to lake resorts, the bride changed to a two-piece dress of pink tissue gingham with which she combined white accessories and her bridal orchid.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rrlph Shindeldecker of near Iberia. Both she and her husband are 1951 graduates of Iberia High School. She attended Ohio State University and is employed in the office of the Central Ohio Steel Products Co. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Riddle of Iberia. He attended Kent State University before entering the Army. He has been stationed at Fort Knox, Ky., but will report to Fort Monmouth, N. J., following the wedding trip and his bride will remain with her parents.

Guests attended the wedding from Marion, Caledonia, El Paso, Tex., Martel, Shelby, Columbus, Mansfield, Charleston, W. Va., Maumee, Elkhart, Ind., Parma, Ashland, Mt. Gilead, Galion and Altheimer, Ark.

For her wedding, the bride chose a dress of blue and white pure silk with which she combined white accessories. Her bridal flowers were red and white roses. Mrs. Ray was dressed in blue.

Troop of Scouts Puts Training to Good Use

CLEVELAND (AP) — Boy Scout Troop 297 put its training to good use yesterday and rescued a 39-year-old man who got lost in a woods while berry-picking.

The man, Joseph Skiva, of nearby Independence, wandered too far into the brush Saturday in his quest for blackberries and found himself traveling in circles. Worried relatives called police Saturday night, and the scouts, who were hiking in the area, took up the hunt.

Yesterday morning they found Skiva sitting under a tree, thirsty, tired and full of berries.

Because many men of the tiny Dutch-held island of Saba in the Caribbean get jobs in other places, there are approximately two women to every man among the 1,000 people on the island.

Was Hard Worker

Loss of Taft To Be Felt By Senate Republicans

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Anyone who ever sat in the Senate gallery and watched Sen. Taft at work—and it made no difference whether you agreed with him—could not but think: "The people whose views he represents are lucky to have him fighting for them."

In his 15 Senate years no one worked harder or more earnestly there for what he believed than the Ohio Republican. And what Taft believed represented the views of many millions of people. Not necessarily always the same people. But always many millions on any issue.

In those years, perhaps the most critical in American history, there were enormous and often bitter differences of opinion in this country—ranging from the pre-war draft and aid to Britain to the postwar problems of the United Nations, the Atlantic Pact and sending troops to Europe.

Taft was in the thick of all those issues.

He was a healthy force in a Democratic society which, if it is to survive and escape tyranny, must depend upon the vigorous airing of opposing views in order to arrive at intelligent majority decisions and, when necessary, reasonable compromises.

But while it seems impossible that anyone could dispute his energy or his earnestness, there can be no such unanimity on his judgment. On some of the most far-reaching Senate decisions a majority of his colleagues voted against him. They respected him, listened to him attentively, and disagreed with him.

The stand he took on some of those issues poses important, but unanswered, questions of history. For example, where would this country—or the world be now if Taft had won out in his opposition to a draft in 1940—when this country had an ill-equipped army of only 275,000 and the Nazis were over-running Europe by the millions?

And what would have been the result for this country and the world if Congress had listened to Taft one year later and killed the draft just four months before Pearl Harbor?

Taft sternly denied he was an isolationist. But the effect of some of his views, if they had prevailed, would have been to isolate this country far more than it is now.

For one thing, he opposed the legislation which made this country a member of the United Nations. He was against the Atlantic Pact which put this country into military alliance with Western Europe against Russia.

He seemed much more in tune with majority American thinking on domestic issues. In that field he probably will be remembered longest for the Taft-Hartley Labor Relations Act which he fathered in 1947 to replace the old Wagner Act passed under President Roosevelt in 1935.

The Wagner Act was loaded on the side of organized labor. Organized labor claims T-H is loaded on the side of the employers. But at least T-H guarantees employers various kinds of protection which the Wagner Act did not.

Taft knew he'd make enemies of Union leader with T-H. And he did. But, judging from his overwhelming re-election in Ohio in 1950, it was an enmity which didn't hurt him.

In his 15 Senate years Taft probably expressed more opinions on more subjects than most senators because he worked hard at keeping informed. Sometimes he seemed to put his foot in his mouth, and had to explain later what he meant the first time.

He was a sensitive man who could be stung by criticism. But he reached his full maturity, emotionally and politically, after Dwight D. Eisenhower defeated him for the Republican presidential nomination and went on to win the election.

He buried any injured feelings he may have had—he could not have escaped a deep emotional reaction when he realized finally he could never be president—and worked earnestly with Eisenhower.

The President lost a strong right-hand when Taft died last Friday. More than any Republican now in the Senate, Taft could swing that body into line behind the man in the White House job which Taft had yearned to have for so long.

Police Department Attention Focused On 'Quack' Artist

With a quack-quack here and a quack-quack there a wandering duck called for a bit of attention today from Marion police.

The duck, apparently a pet, was found by a cruiser patrolman as it wandered around in the middle of Reed Ave. about midway between Mt. Vernon and Indiana Aves. at 12:57 this morning.

Fearing the quacker might stray into the path of an automobile, the policeman loaded it into the cruiser and took it to the police station.

Police placed it in a cardboard box covered with a piece of beaverboard and anxiously awaited a call from someone inquiring if a duck had been found. "All we want to do is get it back to its owner as soon as possible, "police said.

At last report, police had tacked the name "Donald" to the duck and "Donald" was hungrily gobbling a piece of water soaked bread offered from the hand of Patrolman Harold A. Morris.

53-Year-Old Man Begins Long Swim Across Lake Erie

POINT PELEE, Ont. (AP) — William Sadlo, 53-year-old grandfather, plunged into the chilly waters of Lake Erie at 2:10 a. m. today and headed for Cedar Point, Ohio, approximately 30 miles away.

Sadlo hopes to swim Lake Erie by 7 p. m. today.

He took off from the west side of Point Pelee, splashed around for 100 yards, apparently picked up a favorable current and then started swimming in earnest.

The water was chilly, but Sadlo said he didn't mind and confidently predicted he'd conquer the lake.

A power cruiser put off a skiff into which Sadlo's coach, Pat Roach, of Toronto, and another man climbed. They plan to accompany Sadlo all the way.

Thanks Given For Truce at Union Service

New Epworth Pastor Speaks; Orchestra Presents Program

The union vesper service for churches of the Marion community Sunday night at Central Christian Church gardens was preceded by a period of music by the Epworth Methodist Church orchestra, and the speaker was the new pastor of Epworth Church, Rev. Walter C. Eyster. The orchestra is directed by George Barnhart. Attendance at the service was more than 300.

Devotional leader for the service was Rev. L. Harrison Ludwig of Salem Evangelical and Reformed Church, president of the Marion County Council of Churches.

This service was used as an opportunity for public expression for this community of thankfulness for the truce in Korea, and both Rev. Ludwig and Rev. Eyster expressed hope and desire for a "lasting peace" in addition to cessation of hostilities.

Rev. Ludwig reported on the Council of Churches breakfast meeting Sunday morning at the YMCA, and expressed appreciation for the offerings given at the union vesper services which go for the work of the Weekday Religious Education program in the public schools sponsored by the council. It was reported today that with the offering received at the vesper service Sunday night, the amount from that source for religious education work has reached $305. The Sunday night offering of $67 is the largest ever received in a similar service.

"The Christian Witness" was the sermon theme, and Rev. Eyster spoke on "these Christians, who with their hearts glowing from a personal knowledge of the living God, first looking to their own Christian experience, go out into the community to bring good to others."

The union service next Sunday night will be in charge of the host pastor, Rev. Ashley Booth, with Rev. L. E. Ames of First EUB Church as speaker.

Reports Presented Covering Religious Education in City

Approximately 50 members of the Marion County Council of Churches finance committee, representing 21 churches, breakfasted at the YMCA Sunday morning and heard reports on the Weekday Religious Education program of the council for the public schools.

Arthur Haas, in the absence of the religious education teachers, gave facts concerning the work. He stated there were 1,700 pupils enrolled in 58 different classes during the last school year. A third teacher will be hired by the Council of Churches this year. Douglas Torrance presented the budget for the year and announced allotments apportioned to the various churches affiliated with the council for the financing of the program.

Rev. E. M. Hertzler of near Marion, president of the Marion County Council of Churches when the teaching of religion in the schools was started a few years ago, told of the beginning of the work here. He stated that throughout the nation, 45 per cent of the children get no religious instruction whatsoever.

The present president of the council, Rev. L. Harrison Ludwig, pointed out that in Marion 25 per cent of the children enrolled in the religious education classes of the public schools do not claim any religious affiliation. He said that the Weekday instruction is effective because attendance at the classes in school is much more regular than attendance at Sunday Church School classes. The average of attendance at Church School is 60 per cent, while the Weekday Religious Education attendance is 97 per cent, a figure equal to the percentage of enrollment of the public school grade pupils in the classes.

It was pointed out that, begun as a job of the churches, the program "must continue to be supported by the churches," and that "it is the duty of the churches to give the community Christian education." Prayer was offered by Rev. H. V. Falor of Oakland EUB Church, and the closing prayer was by Rev. Hertzler.

Governors

told a reporter there is a better prospect for cutting taxes next year than the situation indicates now. By that time, he said, the administration will be able to put in its own program.

Thornton joined three other Republican governors who in separate news conferences yesterday advocated that Congress set aside any moves to cut taxes until after the federal budget is balanced.

A Democrat, Gov. Lawrence Wetherby of Kentucky, agreed. Lee of Utah dissented. Long an outspoken exponent of lower taxes, he said in an interview:

"I don't know how you can cut spending unless you cut taxes."

Congress

seemed to rule out any hope of immediately reviving the proposal, sent up only last Thursday, to raise the debt ceiling from 275 billion dollars to 290 billions.

The debt now stands at 272½ billions and Humphrey contended the government might cause a "near panic" if it failed to meet its payroll or pay its bills.

But several Finance Committee members—like Sen. Byrd (D-Va), who is said to have offered the motion to kill the proposal at the closed-door session—disputed this. They said the government can get by financially until Congress meets again in January. If not, they said, Eisenhower can call a special session in October or November.

Survey Under Way on Atomic Weapons Role

Defense Department Launches New Study Into Integration

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department is making a new, exhaustive study of how to mold into a smooth fighting machine such weapons as supercarriers and bombers, atomic cannons and guided missiles—and even devices not yet past the laboratory stage.

This new study, it was learned today, has been undertaken by the Pentagon's Weapons System Evaluation Group (WSEG), a military-civilian agency organized in 1948.

The survey will provide the groundwork for recommendations by the new Joint Chiefs of Staff, as requested by Secretary of Defense Wilson. The new Joint Chiefs take over in two weeks.

The weapons evaluation group is headed by Army Lt. Gen. Geoffrey Keyes. Besides military members, the Defense Department says, it includes "a small staff of outstanding scientists and engineers."

The Defense Department declined to say specifically whether the weapons group had previously made any special study of the use of supercarriers, like the 60,000-ton Forrestal Class, of which two are now being built, or of atomic cannons, which the Army now has ready for troop delivery.

When the controversy between the Navy and Air Force over building of the intercontinental B36 bombers was at its height, the group made an exhaustive analysis of the capabilities of the huge bombers.

Decisions since then have included: to go ahead with the Forestal-Class carriers, complete the first 280mm atomic cannons for the Army and develop a number of new guided missiles.

A once-raging dispute over another Defense Department decision—to cut back Air Force funds and goal—came to a quiet climax over the weekend. Eisenhower signed Saturday a bill appropriating $34,371,541,000 for the department during the year which began July 1.

Rep. Yorty (D-Calif), the most outspoken House critic of the cutback, issued a statement yesterday contending Republican Congressmen plan to continue the argument via prepared television programs.

Columbiana Man Suggests Motive In Two Pike Slayings

LISBON, Ohio (AP)—Sheriff Howard J. Clark said today a person deranged by the death of a relative in a truck accident may be responsible for the slaying of two truckers on the Pennsylvania Turnpike and the wounding of another near here.

"You might call it a theory that's running around in my mind," the Columbiana County sheriff said. "The killer might have lost a relative in an accident involving a truck and it's played on his mind. Now he's out to get all truck drivers."

He said he had visited some trucking companies in his county to study reports of any fatal accidents involving their vehicles.

Lt. W. B. Umpleby of the Ohio Highway Patrol also said he had checked several clues involving fatal truck accidents, but reported he was putting no special emphasis on the grudge theory.

The latest trucker shooting occurred Friday when John K. Shepherd, 34, of West Alexander, Pa., was wounded in the head while sleeping in his truck near here. He is in a Salem hospital now and reported out of danger.

The men killed on the turnpike, apparently by the same gunman, were Lester B. Woodward, 30, of near Harrisburg, Pa., and Harry F. Pitts, 39, of Bowling Green, Va.

Drugs Stolen From Doctor's Medical Kit

Marion police today are investigating the theft of some $60 worth of non-narcotic drugs from Dr. J. G. McNamara's car while it was parked in front of his home Friday night.

Dr. McNamara discovered the theft when he went to his car early Saturday morning and found most of the drugs missing from his medical kit which he had left in the car over night.

He reported the theft to police at 7:40 a.m. Saturday. Police Chief Tom Coon said today that probably whoever stole the drugs was looking for narcotics.

TICKETS COST HIM $19.20

Failure to pay traffic tickets issued him by Marion police cost Clifford Danner, 25, of Prospect, a total of $19.20 in Municipal Court today. He was fined $13 for the 13 tickets and was assessed $6.20 court costs. He was arrested at the police station at 2 p.m. Saturday on a warrant issued by Police Chief Tom Coon.

Undergoes Operation

Mrs. Fred C. Baldauf of 228 S. Grand Ave. underwent a major operation today in University Hospital, Columbus. She has been in the hospital for observation for the past week.

Becomes Senior Senator

Sen. Bricker To Wield More Patronage Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the death of Sen. Taft, Ohio today has a new senior senator—John W. Bricker, the state's former Republican governor.

In many respects, this title carries only a certain prestige.

But in this case—certainly if Gov. Frank J. Lausche of Ohio appoints a Democrat to replace Taft—it will mean Bricker will have chief control over patronage.

"The two senators always got along very harmoniously," one Republican source said. "But they varied as to methods on patronage.

"Bricker goes along with the Ohio Republican chairman on job recommendations.

"The likely routine from now on in will be: The county chairman will make a recommendation to the state chairman. The state chairman will turn this over to Bricker.

"Taft acted a little more independently of the Republican organization in Ohio. He'd usually get his choices from the county committeemen, then check later with the state chairman."

So far, Bricker's office says, there have been 255 job recommendations, mostly in Washington, made for Ohio.

Ohioans won't get all those jobs, of course, as a recommendation from another state may be taken instead.

Bricker's new power therefore means, a source said, that Ray Bliss of Akron, GOP state chairman, will have considerably more voice in party recommendations.

No sources will talk for publication about this at present, but the change probably means that law Director Roy Browne of Akron has a better chance now to be U. S. district attorney in Cleveland.

Browne is Bliss' favorite. Taft was believed to have been backing William Minshall of Cleveland, the pick of the Cuyahoga County GOP Committee.

With respect to the campaign for Taft's seat that will come up in November, 1954, an excellent source said one thing can be set down with certainty:

Rep. George Bender (R-Ohio) will be a candidate.

Senator Taft

family, Chief Justice Vinson and other Supreme Court members, Cabinet officials, heads of the armed services.

Floral tributes banked the wall behind the bier, with only an evergreenery covered shrouded statues on either side.

The chaplains and Sen. Bricker spoke from a stand immediately behind the casket. Ferns and casional rustle of noise in the back ground.

Immediately after the benediction the Marine band struck up the Star Spangled Banner. President Eisenhower and all the guests rose to their feet. The honor guard flanking the casket presented arms, the bayonets in their rifle tips bleaming in the soft light filtering through the windows in the high dome.

When the music stopped, the honor guards snapped to attention, turned and filed to an ante room where they laid down their rifles.

Then they marched into the rotunda again, placed themselves on each side of the casket, lifted it slowly and with measured tread carried the body of the fallen Seuate leader out the main door of the Capitol.

A chauffeur stepped forward to wheel Mrs. Taft out of the rotunda. Accompanied by her sons and other members of the family, she followed the body part way toward the door, then turned toward the Senate and went down the aisle leading toward a side exit. The senator's brother, Charles P. Taft of Ohio, was with the family.

President and Mrs. Eisenhower were the next to leave.

Next to leave were Bricker and the Senate and the House chaplains.

They were followed by members of the President's Cabinet. Behind Secretary of Defense Wilson came Harold E. Stassen, director of the foreign aid program.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur also walked slowly by. Then came Chief Justice Vinson and other members of the Supreme Court.

Next to leave were the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Then came the ambassadors and ministers from other nations. After they had left, members of the House turned toward their chamber and the senators returned to their side of the Capitol.

President Eisenhower adjusted his schedule to attend the funeral today and pay a parting tribute to the man who himself aspired to the presidential nomination and then became the working partner of his party conqueror.

Vice President Nixon, Cabinet and Supreme Court members, diplomats, military chiefs, dignitaries such as Gen. Douglas MacArthur, were invited to the services. The Senate and House were called into session ahead of time so their members might proceed in a body to the rotunda in the center of the Capitol building.

After the state memorial rites, the body will be flown to Taft's native Cincinnati.

There, it will lie in state at a funeral home until burial tomorrow at Indian Hill Episcopal Church cemetery. The interment ceremony will be private, but simultaneously a public service will be held at Cincinnati's Christ Church.

The emphasis of the services at the Capitol today was on dignity and brevity:

An opening prayer by the Senate chaplain, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, a eulogy by Taft's fellow Ohio senator, John W. Bricker; muted music and the national anthem by the Marine Band; a closing prayer by Dr. Bernard Braskamp, the House chaplain.

Simple as these services may be, they have been held for only a dozen men in history, beginning with the martyred Lincoln. Twenty-three years ago, in March 1930, another Taft was honored thus—William Howard Taft, President, chief justice, and father of the senator.

To offer the last accolades of official Washington, 900 persons were invited to the rites in the rotunda. MacArthur, a friend of Taft for years, is flying from New York with his wife for the ceremony.

Yesterday the people had their chance to give homage to "Mr. Republican," a man of stature most of them knew merely as a name.

For nearly seven hours—from 1:47 p. m. to 8:03 p. m.—they climbed steadily up the broad east steps of the Capitol and streamed into the rotunda where Taft lay in a bronze casket beneath a blanket of soft yellow roses. The lid was kept lowered because the family wanted it that way.

Hour after hour, on through the night an honor guard of soldiers, sailors, Marines and airmen, changing every half hour, kept vigil beside the bier. The Senate ma- at his righ, he Ohio sa eflg eetate jority leader rested with head toward the west, an American flag at his right, the Ohio state flag at his left.

Two of the Capitol guides turned up in the line that filed past the coffin. So did several congressmen. But mostly just ordinary people strode by.

Some had been waiting outside in the hot sun for an hour and a half, in a line stretching across the Capitol Plaza some 250 yards or so toward the Library of Congress. Gradually the line dissolved and late comers didn't have to wait.

Taft's body was flown from New York yesterday morning in a Military Air Transport plane. Some of the family were aboard the plane, others met it at National Airport. The senator's ill widow and one of the four sons, William Howard Taft III, were absent.

A detail of eight soldiers carried the flag-draped casket to a waiting hearse and accompanied it in the drive along the Potomac, across the river, and on to the Capitol Plaza. The family followed in limousines.

In the Capitol rotunda, the flag was removed from the casket and the blanket of roses, provided by the family was put in its place.

Through it all, Mrs. Taft, who is confined to a wheelchair, remained at her Georgetown home,

Taft 13th To Be Honored With State Funeral

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert A. Taft is the 13th man and the 5th Ohioan to be honored with a state funeral.

An estimated 36,000 persons filed past Taft's body yesterday as it rested in the rotunda of the Capitol in prelude to memorial services today.

The first to lie there was Abraham Lincoln, assassinated in 1865 by a disillusioned Southern sympathizer. The 11 others, besides Taft:

President William Howard Taft, the late senator's father, who died in 1938.

Thaddeus Stevens, Pennsylvania Congressman during Reconstruction days.

Charles Sumner, Massachusetts senator of the same period.

President Garfield, shot fatally in 1881 by a disappointed job seeker.

John A. Logan, Civil War general and senator from Illinois when he died in 1886.

President McKinley, assassinated by an Anarchist in 1901.

Adm. George Dewey, hero of the Spanish War.

The Unknown Soldier, returned in 1921 from a grave in France.

President Harding, who died of an illness in 1923.

Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of American Expeditionary Forces in World War I, who died in 1948.

The Ohioans, besides the two Tafts, were Garfield, McKinley and Harding.

General Telephone To Expand Service In Atom Plant Area

General Telephone System, through its operating company, General Telephone Co. of Ohio, will furnish a substantial telephone installation to the Ohio Valley Electric Corporation's office installation adjacent to the Pike County Atomic Energy plant, the company announced today. Ohio Valley Electric Corp. recently obtained $420,000,000 from 52 insurance companies, banks and pension funds to complete construction of the power facilities which will serve the Pike County Atomic Energy installation.

Heartbreak at Hand

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—The greatest period of heartbreak in the Korean War starts this week.

For the slow process of returning American prisoners of war must inevitably bring sadness to more homes than it does joy.

This is because the last Department of Defense casualty report listed more than 11,600 soldiers as captured or missing, but the enemy admits having only 3,313 American captives.

Gen. Mark Clark thinks the Reds haven't told the full story—that they hold more of our troops prisoner than they have yet said. Whether they do or not, the probability is most of the soldiers officially listed as missing are dead.

That is the blunt fact of any war in which both sides exchange information on the number of their prisoners. The majority of those still listed as "missing in action" will never return.

The percentage of dead will certainly be higher in such a savage war as that fought in Korea. Many of the missing died upon the battlefields and were buried by peasants in unmarked graves. Hundreds and perhaps thousands of helpless American prisoners were slaughtered by the enemy during retreats. Hundreds and perhaps thousands of others froze or starved to death in forced marches north.

It will be years before the final toll will be figured. And since the enemy still holds a vast portion of Korea, the fate of many soldiers will never be known—"missing in action" forever.

But, judging from the experience of previous wars, the present estimate of slightly more than 25,100 battle dead will almost certainly be increased to more than 30,000.

This means the candle of hope that has burned in thousands of American households for the return of a missing son or father will be extinguished in the next few months. The tragedy is that many hearts will go on blindly hoping and hoping year after year. That is the greatest cruelty of war—for those behind never to know in their lifetimes the fate of someone missing they held dear.

But as the tension mounts unbearably in some homes, glad relief will flood others with each freed batch of prisoners.

How should these returning men be treated?

A handful may have actually defected to the Communist side during their long imprisonment in order to gain better treatment. More may be confused, doubtful, or feel resentfully that the nation demanded too great a sacrifice of them.

It is normal for combat men to feel a bit angry about the lush living of the homefront when they first get back. And it is quite likely some POWs will secretly resent the fact that their friends at home never had it so good while they themselves never had it so bad. That is only human.

But most of these men will come back to a hero's welcome in their old neighborhood or home town, and the warmth of that welcome probably will determine how they feel.

It is unfair and unwise, however, to prod a returned prisoner with questions and platitudes about his attitudes unless he feels like talking about his experiences. Many men back from a war cannot tell what is locked within their hearts because they feel that people who have never shared their ordeal cannot fully understand it.

They have undergone a terrible winter of the spirit, and they will thaw only in their own time. You can't hurry them.

The main thing is to let them know how glad you are they are back, how willing you are to give them any help they need, and then let them alone if they want to be alone.

What most prisoners want is to feel free.

Brevity Brief

INEZ ROBB

This Dior should drop dead!

So much, for the nonce, for this couturier Casey who lowered the boom on women's skirts just after World War II, and is now trying to hike 'em up again.

What this Parisian character should concentrate on is not the length of skirts but the gradual disappearance of skirts. While this needle hero fiddles, more and more women are taking to pants. And, for my money, that constitutes a five-alarm fire in Rome.

-:-

THE INCREASING numbers of women appearing in public in pants or trousers are simply flying in the face of nature. I submit that nature and nature's God never intended women to wear 'em. And the same goes for slacks. The trouble is, on a woman they're never slack.

If pants merely fit women like the paper on the wall, that would be one thing. But at least paper has the decency not to stretch.

It was Paul Gallico, I believe, who first called attention to the fact that the motto "So round, so firm, so fully packed" was no exclusively applicable to cigarets.

My objection to pants on big girls—and that is any girl over 12—is purely esthetic. I don't want to look at any of 'em in trousers and that includes Marlene Dietrich. I have never caught sight of the great Dietrich in pants when, even on her, a skirt wouldn't have been twice as becoming.

AND AS for the stylish stouts in slacks—Heaven help us; let us bow our heads for a moment of silent prayer that they may ultimately see themselves as others see them and be equally revolted.

As near as I can figure out, midsummer madness in a sizable percentage of women takes the form of addition to pants. And in that category I also include shorts of any length worn on the public streets, but particularly short-shorts that give the impression that big girls are back in didies again.

New York this season has been afflicted with just 1,000 too many carloads of female tourists in such shorts.

To add to the general misfortune, they seem especially favored by tall, skinny girls with spindle shanks or short, fat girls with Steinway construction.

ALL I ASK, and it doesn't seem unreasonable to me, is that lady tourists wear clothes when they come to town and not frighten the natives—who, since the burlesque theaters closed down—aren't used to such sights.

I am also unalerably opposed o grown girls running around he mak 'm look barr'n Marilynq.? to such sghts.

I am also unalterably opposed to grown girls running around the streets in strapless dresses that make 'em look barer'n Marilyn Monroe in a ball gown. I was going to say barer'n M.M. on a calendar, but that would be exaggerating somewhat.

Again, my objections are esthetic. Women simply look better on the street in broad daylight with shoulders and front balcony covered, and with at least an inch of sleeve. The barer the ball gown by candlelight, the better, but not, pul-lease, while the sun shines, Nellie!

WOMEN are running around the streets this summer not wearing enough, as grandma used to say, to flag a bread-wagon. Shucks, they couldn't flag a soap-box scooter. Who wants to look at all that meat and no potatoes?

So I hate bobby sox on big girls, too. On the tennis court, on the golf course, yes. On the street, no, no, a thousand times no!

In short, I would be tickled to death if the big girls would not only pull up their sox and act like women but, speed the day, look like 'em.

Third Fire in Day Finally Levels House

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP)—The Harold Minder ranch home was plain doomed.

Firemen early Saturday morning doused a blaze noticed by a passing motorist.

Nearly seven hours later the firemen were back at the house again for another blaze.

Then early in the afternoon a third call. That time things had gone too far and the house was destroyed by flames.

Firemen said the house apparently was struck by lightning which burned the wiring and left several unnoticed spots smouldering.

Rattlesnake Is No Match for Chemist

POINT MUGU, Calif. (AP)—John Tabor, a chemist at the Navy's air missile test center, stepped outside his laboratory and spotted a four-foot rattlesnake.

He couldn't find a stick but his chemical knowledge provided a substitute. He went back into his laboratory, got the carbon dioxide fire extinguisher and sprayed the snake. That froze it stiff. Then he carried it inside and severed the head.

Sanity Hearing Is Set For Former Actress

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A sanity hearing is scheduled Wednesday for former actress Joan Berry, who in 1946 won a paternity suit from Charlie Chaplin.

Commitment papers were filed after her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Berry, and Atty. Joseph Scott visited her in General Hospital. Miss Berry had entered the hospital voluntarily last Thursday after she was found wandering barefooted in nearby Torrance.

Chaplin has been paying her $100 a month to help support Carol Ann Berry, now 9.

"In this number of miles (929,000), we have not 'knocked out' either a rod or main bearing, have not replaced a clutch in any of these cars, and have not replaced a drive shaft or rear end."

Other make failed!

"During the period September, 1950 to April, 1951, I tried one of the 'Big Three' on this job and in a period of 60,000 miles we replaced one clutch, and all bearings in rear end and transmission.

"There may be other makes that will do as well for us, but I doubt that any will do better than the eight Kaisers we have used and our present Kaiser."

Signed Louis Prante

N.Y. Stock Quotations

NEW YORK (AP)—Higher prices were paid for stocks today in a moderately active market.

A few issues pushed up to around a point while the bulk of the list traded unchanged to a shade higher. Losses were minor.

Railroads and steels were the most active of the major divisions at steady prices. Motors also were steady.

The better gains were shown by oils and aircrafts, but activity was not pronounced. No major division was lower on balance.

Higher stocks today included Baltimore & Ohio, Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Texas Co., Douglas Aircraft, and Kennecott Copper.

Annie Rooney — By Darrell McClure

HONEST~ I GOT THE WORSTEST WIM-WAMS I EVER HAD IN MY WHOLE LIFE, WHEN I THINK OF THAT CRAZY TORNADO WE HAD YESTERDAY~
IT SURE WAS A BUTTON-BUSTER, BUT NOBODY WAS KILLED~ SO WHY WASTE TIME TODAY WORRYING ABOUT YESTERDAY'S TORNADO?
BUT IT WAS SUCH A HORRID, SNEAKY OLD TORNADO TO COME ALONG JUST WHEN BIG MIKE DOLLARS WAS AUCTIONING OFF THE HANDBAG FULL OF MONEY TO HELP THE CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL~
IT WAS JUST LIKE A WICKED WINDY RUNAWAY~ IT SNATCHED THE MONEY BAG OUTA MR. MIKE'S HAND AN' WENT FLYIN' AWAY~ NOW IT'S GONE FOREVER!
